The End of Accounting and the Path Forward for Investors and Managers—Baruch Lev 2016-04-14 An integrated valuation framework for understanding and making economic decisions The End of Accounting and the Path Forward for Investors and Managers shows how the ubiquitous financial reports have become useless in capital market decisions and lays out an alternative framework. Based on a comprehensive, large-sample statistical analysis, this book reports financial documents' continuous deterioration in relevance to investors' decisions. An enlightening discussion details the reasons why accounting is losing relevance in today's market, hacked by numerous examples with real-world impact. Beyond simply identifying the problem, this report offers a solution—the Value Creation Report—and demonstrates its utility in key industries. New indicators focus on stakeholders other than shareholders, to identify and evaluate a company's true value-creating resources for a more up-to-date approach to critical investment decision making. While entire industries have come to rely on financial reports for vital information, these documents are flawed and insufficient when it comes to the way investors and lenders think about economic value. What investors actually need is an alternative critical-thinking tool to help them make more informed decision making. Discover a new, comprehensive system of economic indicators Focus on strategic, value-creating components in company valuation Learn how traditional financial documents are quickly losing their utility Find a path forward with actionable, up-to-date information Major corporate decisions, such as repurchases, M&As, are proving to be suboptimal for all involved due to profitability and asset-liability values. These documents move mountains, as what happens if they're based on faulty indicators that fail to show the true value of the company? The End of Accounting and the Path Forward for Investors and Managers shows you the reality and offers a new blueprint for more accurate valuation.
